Mr. Norvill Jones, Chief of Staff
Committee on Foreign Relations
United States Senate
Washington, D. C. 20510

Dear Norvill:

With reference to your request the other day, enclosed please find some classified and unclassified material in connection with your upcoming trip to the USSR.

It would be a great help if you could indicate whom you intend to see and topics of particular interest in order to pull together both a helpful and a manageable package. With respect to the material enclosed, the Atlas and City Guides are somewhat dated, but they do contain some good maps and they are unclassified.

25X1 [redacted] The memorandum on Brezhnev and the succession is a year old, but we believe the political dynamics it describes are essentially unchanged. The forecast would not be greatly altered today. The one major update would involve the sudden death of Party Secretary Kulakov who had been widely touted as the member of the "younger" generation most likely to get Brezhnev's job as party chief.

Sincerely,

[redacted]
Deputy Legislative Counsel
